DR. TASHA MAC

IDENTITY INTEGRATION SCIENTIST | AUTHOR | SPEAKER | FOUNDER

Dr. Tasha Mac, h.c. is an emerging expert in identity integration and structural stabilization whose more than 25 year career spans high stakes business, financial, federal, defense, aerospace, leadership, higher education, and entrepreneurial environments.

A seasoned systems strategist and educator, she has worked inside and alongside industry leading and globally recognized organizations across Big Four public accounting, global financial services, defense contracting, aerospace manufacturing, and aviation training. Her work has required precision in environments where risk, compliance, financial performance, organizational structure, and human decision making carry significant consequences.

Her experience includes multi billion dollar organizational impact through audit, financial oversight, process assurance, risk mitigation, systems improvement, and organizational strategy, along with years of teaching, training, coaching, and developing professionals across corporate, federal, defense, higher education, and entrepreneurial settings.

Across that work, Dr. Tasha became highly experienced in recognizing patterns across systems, identifying what is occurring beneath visible outcomes, and understanding how seemingly separate disruptions can affect the larger structure carrying performance.

That systems perspective now informs Identity Integration Science™, the emerging interdisciplinary body of work she created to examine disruption within human identity and the conditions that may support stabilization, integration, and sustainable performance.

Her guiding principle: Stabilization precedes sustainable performance and transformation.
